How to Use This Guide

This is a pre-application readiness guide, not an approval guarantee. Banks, payment processors, marketplaces, and other providers use their own rules and may ask for more information. Use this guide to remove avoidable website issues before you apply.

A Simple Review Process

1. Complete each section in order.
2. Use only accurate information that matches your real business.
3. Test the website on both desktop and mobile.
4. Compare the final website with your company documents and application details.
5. Check the current rules of the provider you plan to use.

What Reviewers Need to Understand

Reviewer question	Your website should answer it clearly
Who are you?	Business name, brand, location, contact details, and company story.
What do you sell?	Specific products or services, how they work, and who they are for.
What will customers pay?	Clear prices, plans, estimates, or a transparent quote process.
What happens after payment?	Delivery, fulfillment, cancellation, return, or refund rules.

BUSINESS BEYOND BORDERS

How can customers get help?	A working email, phone number when appropriate, and contact form.

ONE RULE TO REMEMBER: Everything on the website should be true, current, easy to verify, and consistent with the application you submit.

01 Make the Website Secure and Reliable

Why it matters: A reviewer should be able to open, browse, and use the site without errors or security warnings.

What to do

- Use your own active domain: Avoid temporary URLs and free subdomains for the final business website.
- Enable HTTPS: Install a valid SSL certificate so every page opens securely.
- Protect payment information: Use the payment provider's approved checkout, hosted page, or encrypted payment fields. Never collect card or bank details through a normal contact form, email, chat, or unsecured page. Make only payment-security or PCI compliance claims that the business can support.
- Check desktop and mobile: Navigation, buttons, forms, and text must work on common screen sizes.
- Improve load speed: Compress oversized images and remove unnecessary scripts or plugins.
- Protect forms: Use spam protection such as CAPTCHA where it is useful, without blocking real customers.
- Use a business email: A domain-based address such as support@yourdomain.com looks more consistent than a personal inbox.
- Set basic page information: Add accurate page titles and descriptions; use analytics or a tag manager only if the business actually needs them.

BUSINESS BEYOND BORDER

Avoid

- ✗ Expired certificates, blank pages, broken layouts, server errors, or unfinished maintenance screens.
- ✗ Installing random plugins simply to make the site look more complete.

> QUICK CHECK: Open the website in a private browser window, test it on a phone, and submit every form once.

02 Use Real, Specific Business Content

Why it matters: Generic or copied content makes it difficult to verify what the business actually does.

What to do

- Write an original business description: Explain what you offer, who it is for, and how it is delivered.
- List real products or services: Include useful names, descriptions, features, and customer outcomes.
- Explain pricing and charges clearly: Show the amount and currency, such as USD or GBP, not only a currency symbol. Disclose taxes, shipping or delivery charges, setup fees, minimum charges, billing frequency, and any other required cost before payment. If pricing is custom, explain how customers receive and approve the final quote.
- Explain promotions and trials: Clearly state eligibility, duration, expiry date, discount conditions, trial charges, post-trial price, automatic renewal, and cancellation terms wherever the customer accepts the offer.
- Use accurate images: Prefer original product, team, office, or work images. Properly licensed stock images are acceptable when relevant, but they must not misrepresent the business.
- Keep claims supportable: Use numbers, certifications, partnerships, or customer results only when you can prove them.

Business Globalizer
BUSINESS BEYOND BORDERS

Avoid

- ✗ Lorem Ipsum, placeholder text, demo products, fake team members, or empty portfolio sections.
- ✗ Copied descriptions, fake testimonials, fabricated reviews, or misleading before-and-after claims.

QUICK CHECK: Ask someone unfamiliar with the business to view the homepage for 30 seconds. Can they explain what the company sells and to whom?

03 Publish the Essential Website Pages

Why it matters: Required pages help customers understand the business and help reviewers assess transparency and customer risk.

What to do

- Home: A clear summary of the business and its main offer.
- About: The company story, experience, and relevant team or ownership information.
- Products or Services: Complete details about what customers receive.
- Pricing or Quote Process: Prices, plans, minimums, fees, or a clear way to request a quote.
- Checkout or Payment Page: Before payment, clearly show the product or service name, selected plan or quantity, total price, currency, taxes or additional fees, and expected fulfillment time. Keep Terms, Privacy, and the relevant Refund, Return, or Cancellation Policy accessible from the checkout.
- Checkout destination: Use the checkout flow approved by the selected payment provider. Do not send customers to an unrelated website, seller, or business to complete payment. A provider-hosted checkout may be used when that provider supports it.
- Contact: Current ways to reach the business.
- Privacy Policy: What personal data is collected, why it is used, who it may be shared with, and how people can contact you about it.

Business Globalizer

- Terms and Conditions: Identify the legal business or trading entity, explain the website and purchasing rules, payment obligations, applicable limitations, dispute process, and governing law. For Fintech payment-method activation, the governing-law country should match the business's registered country.
- For subscriptions or recurring payments: Show the recurring price, currency, billing frequency, renewal terms, trial or introductory charge, cancellation process, and refund conditions beside the payment or order summary. Obtain the customer's clear acceptance before charging. Send a confirmation containing the subscription terms and provide an easily accessible online cancellation method.
- Refund, Return, or Cancellation Policy: Explain eligibility, exclusions, request steps, request deadline, refund method, processing time, return shipping responsibility when applicable, and when the customer should expect the money to appear.
- Shipping, Delivery, or Fulfillment Policy: Explain how and when customers receive what they purchase. For physical goods, include processing time, shipping methods, fees, delivery estimates, eligible destinations, and tracking when available. For digital products or services, explain access, onboarding, project start, delivery milestones, and expected completion time.
- Support or FAQ: Add it when customers need help understanding ordering, onboarding, delivery, or account use.

Avoid

✗ Copying another company's policy without adapting it to your own operations.

✗ Publishing policies that contradict what your sales pages, checkout, or support team actually promise.

QUICK CHECK: Open every policy from the footer and confirm that the company name, contact details, products, and processes are correct.

IMPORTANT: Legal requirements vary by business, customer location, and data practices. Have qualified counsel review policies when needed.

04 Show Consistent Contact and Business Details

Why it matters: Reviewers compare the website with application forms, registration records, public profiles, and supporting documents.

What to do

- Show the legal or trading name clearly: Make the relationship between the brand and legal entity easy to understand.
- Show the business registration number: Add the company registration, incorporation, or equivalent official number where the selected provider or jurisdiction requires it. Make sure it matches the company documents and application.
- Label each address correctly: Clearly distinguish the registered office from the actual trading or operating address. Never present a registered-agent, virtual-mailbox, or forwarding address as a physical operating location unless that description is accurate and accepted by the provider.
- Provide a working business email: Monitor the inbox and reply from the same domain when possible.
- Provide a working business phone number: Add the number when required by the selected bank or payment provider. For Fintech payment-method activation, the website's business identification details should include a phone number. Make sure it works and matches the application.
- Use a tested contact form: Confirm that submissions reach the correct inbox.
- Keep details consistent: Match the spelling, address format, website domain, and business description used in applications and supporting records.

Business Globalizer
BUSINESS BEYOND BORDERS

Avoid

- ✗ Different company names, addresses, phone numbers, or service descriptions across the website and application.
- ✗ A contact page that gives customers no realistic way to receive help.

QUICK CHECK: Search the website for the business name, address, phone, and email. Correct every old or inconsistent version.

05 Build a Complete, Honest Footer

Why it matters: The footer gives customers and reviewers a quick way to confirm the business identity and find important policies.

What to do

- Add a short business description.
- Show the current email, phone number when used, and business address or appropriate contact location.
- Link to Privacy, Terms, and the relevant Refund, Return, Cancellation, Shipping, or Delivery policy.
- Add social links only when they open real, active business profiles.
- Add a current copyright notice.
- Show payment method logos only for methods you genuinely accept and are authorized to display.

Business Globalizer

Avoid

✗ Empty social icons, dead links, unrelated badges, fake trust seals, or payment logos that are not supported at checkout.

QUICK CHECK: Test every footer link on both desktop and mobile.

06 Keep Branding and Social Proof Credible

Why it matters: A consistent identity makes the website easier to trust, but credibility must come from accurate information, not decoration.

What to do

- Use one clear logo and a matching favicon.
- Keep colors, fonts, tone, and company name consistent across pages.
- Use simple navigation labels so customers can find products, policies, and support quickly.
- Link only active social profiles that clearly belong to the business.
- Use testimonials, reviews, partner logos, certifications, and media mentions only with permission and supporting evidence.

Business Globalizer
BUSINESS BEYOND BORDER

Avoid

✗ Buying fake followers or reviews, inventing customer quotes, or using logos that imply a relationship that does not exist.

✗ Keeping inactive social icons only because the template includes them.

QUICK CHECK: Compare the website, social profiles, and application. The business name, offer, visual identity, and contact information should tell the same story.

07 Run a Full Quality Check

Why it matters: Small errors can make a legitimate business look unfinished or difficult to support.

What to do

- Click every menu item, button, policy link, social link, and checkout link.
- Check for 404 pages, redirect loops, security warnings, and missing images.
- Submit contact, quote, signup, and checkout forms using test information.
- Review spelling, grammar, currency, dates, fees, and delivery times.
- Test the main customer journey from landing page to confirmation.
- Confirm that the site is readable and usable on mobile.

Avoid

✗ Testing only the homepage or assuming a button works because it looks clickable.

QUICK CHECK: Use a private browser window and a second device. Fix every error before applying.

08 Keep the Business Offer Focused

Why it matters: A focused website helps reviewers understand the business model, expected customers, and transaction purpose.

What to do

- Lead with one main industry or business model.
- Group closely related products or services together.
- Explain how each offer connects to the same customer need.

- If the company has genuinely separate business lines, organize them clearly and be ready to explain each one.

Avoid

- ✗ Adding unrelated services just to make the business look larger.
- ✗ Using broad labels such as 'all business solutions' without explaining what is actually sold.

QUICK CHECK: Can a reviewer summarize the business model in one sentence after reading the homepage and main product or service page?

09 Check Industry and Provider Restrictions

Why it matters: A legal business can still be unsupported by a particular bank, processor, or marketplace. Policies differ by provider, country, product, and sales method.

Business Globalizer
BUSINESS BEYOND BORDER

What to do

- Read the provider's current prohibited and restricted business rules before applying.
- Check whether your industry needs pre-approval, licenses, age checks, special disclosures, or extra documents.
- Describe the business honestly in the application. Do not hide restricted products or use a different category to avoid review.
- Be prepared to show licenses, supplier records, fulfillment evidence, contracts, invoices, or product details when relevant.
- Recheck policies when your products, countries, delivery model, or transaction pattern changes.

Avoid

- ✗ Assuming that approval by one provider means every provider will support the same business.
- ✗ Treating 'high risk,' 'restricted,' and 'prohibited' as the same thing.

QUICK CHECK: Find the exact policy for the provider and country you plan to use. Save the link and confirm that your business model fits.

IMPORTANT: Examples that often receive extra review include financial services, gambling, adult content, cryptocurrency, supplements or medical products, CBD, weapons, money transfer, investment offers, marketplaces, and other regulated or age-restricted activities. This is not an exhaustive list.

10 Prepare for the Wider Business Review

Why it matters: The website is one part of underwriting. Providers may also review the company, owners, products, transactions, customer support, and ability to deliver what is promised.

Business Globalizer
BUSINESS BEYOND BORDER

What to do

- Business identity: Legal name, registration, ownership, address, website, and contact details.
- Ownership and control: Prepare accurate information for all beneficial owners, controlling persons, directors, and the authorized applicant. Ownership percentages and names must match the company records.
- Business model: What you sell, who buys it, how customers find you, and how you make money.
- Products and fulfillment: Suppliers, inventory, delivery times, service process, and refund handling.
- Pricing and transactions: Typical order value, expected volume, currencies, countries, and billing model.
- Account purpose and funds flow: Be ready to explain the source of business funds, why the account is needed, who will send and receive money, customer and supplier countries, expected currencies, average and maximum transaction size, monthly volume, and whether payments are one-time or recurring.

- Customer support: Support channels, response process, dispute handling, and clear policies.
- Online credibility: Website quality, public presence, honest claims, and consistent information.
- Special business models: Marketplaces, payroll providers, financial platforms, live-streaming businesses, and companies processing money for other businesses may require a separate provider questionnaire, funds-flow diagram, customer due-diligence process, agreements, licenses, or additional approval.

Avoid

✗ Submitting information that is incomplete, exaggerated, inconsistent, or difficult to verify.

QUICK CHECK: Prepare a folder with current company records, owner identification, bank information, supplier or fulfillment proof, invoices or contracts, proof of business activity, and any relevant licenses. Submit only the documents the provider requests, using a secure method.
